Objectives and Contextualisation

Objectives and Contextualization

Economic History is part of the group of basic subjects in the first year of the studies of Economics, Business Administration, Business and Technology, Accounting and Finance. The objective of these subjects is to acquire the knowledge, analytical tools and basic methodology in order to develop the general and specific competencies of the degree programme. This course covers the development of the international economy since pre-industrial times up to present days. It appraises the different phases of modern economic growth, the impact of major historical facts on the economy, as well as the transformation of global economic institutions.

Skills

- Capacity for oral and written communication in Catalan, Spanish and English, which enables synthesis and oral and written presentation of the work carried out.
- Contextualize economic problems in historical terms.
- Demonstrate knowledge on the interrelationships between different economies, the role of national and international economies, their evolution, and the consequences that may be produced for companies.
- Identify the economic agents that make up an economy, understanding how they have been interrelated historically, how they are currently interrelated and forecast futures according to new circumstances and their influence on a specific company.
- Organise the work in terms of good time management, organisation and planning.
- Select and generate the information necessary for each problem, analyse it and take decisions based on that information.
- Show motivation to carry out quality work and sensitivity to the consequences for the environment and society.

- Capacity to adapt to changing environments.
- Capacity of independent learning in the future, gaining more profound knowledge of previous areas or learning new topics.
- Demonstrate initiative and work individually when the situation requires it.
 - Identify the economic agents that make up an economy, understanding how they have been interrelated historically, how they are currently interrelated and forecast futures according to new circumstances and their influence on a specific company.
 - Value ethical commitment in professional practice.
 - Work well in a team, being able to argue proposals and validate or reject the arguments of others in a reasoned manner.

Learning outcomes

1. Capacity of oral and written communication in Catalan, Spanish and English, which allows students to summarise and explain the work conducted both orally and in writing.
2. Analyse the current economic problems in historical terms, for a better assessment of the evolutionary possibilities of economic systems.
3. Assess ethical commitment in professional activity.
4. Capacity to adapt to changing environments.
5. Capacity to continue learning independently in the future, acquiring further knowledge and exploring new areas of knowledge.
6. Demonstrate initiative and work independently when required.
7. Demonstrate motivation regarding the quality of the work performed and sensitivity regarding the consequences on the environment and society.
8. Describe the dynamic aspects of economic activity, taking as a reference the main phases of contemporary economic growth, and identify the main factors that have conditioned it.
9. Explain the theoretical models of the economy using different historical cases as a reference.
10. Identify the problems faced by economic agents when making decisions in uncertain conditions, based on different historical experiences.
11. Organise work, in terms of good time management and organisation and planning.
12. Perform an integrated analysis of the financial, worker and physical flows of the economy, on the basis of different historical experiences.
13. Select and generate the information needed for each problem, analyse it, and make decisions based on this information.
14. Work as part of a team and be able to argue own proposals and validate or refuse the arguments of others in a reasoned manner.

Competences

- Demonstrating a comprehension of the foundations of the historical analysis of economic problems in order to assess and interpret the development opportunities of current economic systems.
- Developing self-learning strategies.

- Students must be capable of searching and analysing information of different sources.

Learning Outcomes

1. Analysing the explicative capacity of the various economic theoretical models in relation to their primary assumptions, taking several historical cases as a reference.
2. Arguing about the problems that must be faced by economic agents (and rarely by the companies), when they must take decisions under conditions of uncertainty, from several historical experiences.
3. Arguing the historical evolution of the strategic factors determining the developing and localisation of the industry, including the business initiative.
4. Describing the most remarkable technological, organisational, and spatial aspects of the industrialisation processes, emphasising the relations between company and technology and the organisational changes in business structures.
5. Developing self-learning strategies.
6. Naming the dynamic aspects of the economic activity, taking as a reference the main phases of the current economic growth, and identifying the main factors that conditioned it.
7. Placing in historical perspective the new industrialisation experiences in the developing countries.
8. Students must be capable of searching and analysing information of different sources.

Methodology

The course will be structured as follows:

1. Lectures

The professor will develop an analytical conceptualisation and a synthesis for each topic in the programme.

The aim is to facilitate the transmission of knowledge and to motivate the student in historical analysis.

2. Tutorials

The aim of tutorials is to help students to achieve the specific knowledge of the subject and acquire transferable skills. Questions will be posed for each topic and students are expected to work on them before class with the support of the readings and other materials.

3. Individual study

The work done in class has to be complemented by the student individual or group work. The student should gain independence in the learning process, and in the process should achieve the analytical tools to develop critical thinking. This work should amount to hundred hours, in addition to lectures and tutorials.

4. Office hours

Students can use the professor's office hours to solve specific questions. Office hours will be announced in the intranet, Campus virtual.

5. Campus Virtual

Campus Virtual is a useful tool to help students to get easy access to information about the logistics of the course and the basic materials that the professor considers essential for learning.
